

US Army Corps
of Engineers®
San Francisco District

San Francisco District

Restoring the environment, enhancing the economy

Thank you for considering a position with the San Francisco District, where engineers, project managers and scientists have found the most rewarding challenges of their careers.

As a professional with the San Francisco District, you will join a team that has enhanced California's coastal economy and protected its natural environment for over 140 years. Today our district continues to plan, design, construct and operate projects for river and harbor navigation, flood control, ecosystem restoration, wildlife protection and recreation. On top of these challenging projects, we also respond to natural disasters.

We constantly seek the best, most creative, most dynamic engineers, project managers, biologists, wetland ecologists, economists, planners, scientists and administrative professionals to meet these extraordinary professional challenges. If you want to have a hand in the future of California's coastline, waterways and wetlands, we may have just the opportunity you are seeking.

August 2008

Who says only the Navy has boats? Pictured below is the Corps of Engineers dredge Essayons, which keeps SF Bay deep enough for the world's great commercial freighter ships.

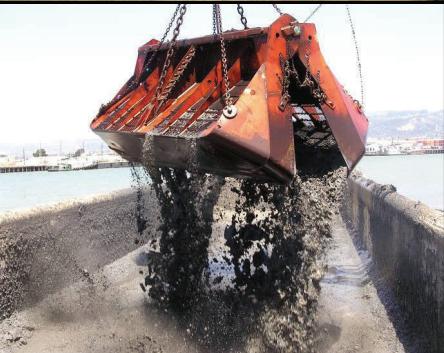

The District's Mission is to provide service to the Army and the Nation by:

- designing
- building
- operating
- maintaining
- and permitting

civil works projects that build the nation's long-term economic might in an environmentally sustainable way.

Key district projects include:

- Increasing the depth of the Oakland and Redwood City Harbors to accommodate larger ships
- Restoring the Hamilton Wetlands
- Providing Flood Protection and environmental mitigation along the Upper Guadalupe River in South Eastern San Jose
- Expanding and modernizing Veterans Administration medical facilities in the Bay Area

In addition to new construction, the district focuses on maintenance dredging, drift removal, dam and lake management, recreation and community outreach.

Environmental awareness, including protecting endangered species, is at the heart of every District project.

The San Francisco District offers a comprehensive benefits package, flexible work arrangements, an on-site full service fitness center, and locations throughout northern California including a headquarters in one of America's most beautiful cities.

For more information about careers with the SF District, please visit our website:

www.spn.usace.army.mil